Experience Deep Blue at Araluen

The Araluen Theatre is set to come alive this weekend when deep blue transforms the stage combining the atmosphere of a club with the rich sound of an orchestra and the stage presence of a rock band, at 8pm this Saturday 18 October 2008.

Araluen Arts Centre Publicity and Promotions Officer Kelsey Rodda said deep blue is no ordinary orchestra – there's no conductor, no music stands and no rules.

"There's an eclectic blend of music covering all genres and the audience can adjust the orchestra's repertoire via SMS suggestions throughout the show," Ms Rodda said.

"The stage features cameras, giant screens, dynamic lighting and electronics immersing the audience in powerful music and artistic visual projections.

"deep blue are the mavericks of orchestral music – they look like an orchestra, act like a band, and the performance feels like a movie.

"In every show deep blue invite a Primary School string section to perform on stage as 'Young Blue', which is part of their work with local schools, charities and organisations to develop opportunities wherever possible.

"The performance is an inspiring and entertaining experience for all involved and we highly recommend all the locals and visitors around Alice Springs to come and enjoy this unique experience."

deep blue are currently on a national tour around Australia, for more information go to www.deepblueorchestra.com.
